Linda Koldenhoven is Co-Founder of Curating For Him, a non-profit whose mission is to glorify God through Fashion, Food and the Arts.

For 15 years, Linda owned a Screen Actors Guild talent agency in Orlando with modeling and marketing divisions. Through her marketing expertise, she attracted corporate clients such as Walt Disney World, Saks Fifth Avenue, SeaWorld, Universal, Darden Restaurants, The Orlando Magic, and many others. During this time, Linda also served on the Florida Hospital Foundation Board where she created the “The Celebrity Stroll” which raised millions of dollars for women undergoing cancer treatment.

Linda also founded a consulting business serving powerhouse clients across the country in the areas of health, education and fashion. Additionally, she worked with leadership author John C. Maxwell to create and launch the Maxwell Leadership Awards Program. Linda has served on various boards, including creating and chairing the Women’s Advisory Board for Museum of the Bible in Washington D.C. for over 3 years.

Recently Linda suffered a stroke and was paralyzed on her right side. Through prayer and the grace of God she was released from ICU with absolutely no symptoms or complications. The doctors said she received a miracle and she now shares her story of healing to encourage others in their faith. Linda has been married to Ken for 46 yrs and they have 3 grown children together.
